

Emergency Medicine Building Our Future Summit Wednesday 30 August 2023

Agenda and additional information

Welcome

Thank you for joining the Emergency Medicine – Building Our Future Summit.

This year, the Australasian College for Emergency Medicine (ACEM) turns forty. There is no doubt that the way we practise emergency medicine and the skills used today are quite different to those required when the College was founded. This summit will focus on the skills and training necessary to deliver safe, effective and compassionate emergency care to communities with increasingly complex healthcare needs, as well as how to build satisfying and sustainable careers in emergency medicine.

During the summit, leaders from ACEM's many councils, committees, steering groups and networks will meet in-person to explore the challenges and opportunities facing our College, and our specialty, as healthcare systems adapt to changing demographics, technologies and expectations. All ACEM members and trainees are invited to join via livestream.

ACEM is the peak body responsible for training emergency physicians and the advancement of professional standards in emergency medicine in Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand. The College delivers a range of training programs and is actively engaged in a vast array of projects and partnerships with governments and other health system stakeholders.

The topics to be covered at the summit represent much of ACEM's work, but it is not possible to cover every activity being undertaken by members, trainees and College staff to advance emergency care.

This summit is just the beginning of an important conversation about what we do, how we work, and where our priorities should lie. We look forward to hearing from you about how we can build and shape our future.

Acknowledgement of Country

ACEM acknowledges the Wurundjeri people of the Kulin nation as the Traditional Custodians of the lands upon which the College Premises are located and the Traditional Custodians of the lands upon which Australian emergency departments are located. The College pays its respects to Elders past, present and future; for they hold the memories, traditions, culture and hopes of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples of Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand.

In recognition that we are a bi-national College, ACEM acknowledges Māori as tangata whenua and Te Tiriti o Waitangi partners in Aotearoa New Zealand.

Attendees are eligible for eight hours of CPD. This will be registered for you if attending in person.

Setting priorities

During the summit, we ask you to consider the role and scope of emergency medicine in relation to a range of practice areas and models-of-care. Clearer notions of role and scope will assist the College with setting priorities, allocating resources, and planning education, training, policy and advocacy activities.

Two mental models are described to assist your thinking:

Regarding the role of emergency medicine, consider a theatrical production. What role do we hope to play? What role do healthcare colleagues think we play? What role do governments expect us to play? What role do communities need us to play? Are we the lead, are we supporting others, are we working in the background as an extra, or do we have no role at all?

Regarding the scope of emergency medicine, consider a swimming pool. What is in our lane? What core skills are in the centre of our lane? What extended skills can augment our expertise to allow us to swim across the broader lane? What extra skills might allow us to take on roles outside our lane that influence emergency care systems and practice? What skills are best performed by others?

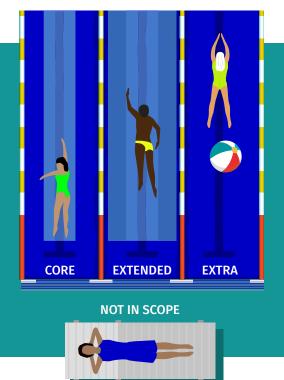

Consider role and scope in relation to clinical work, as well as policy and advocacy activities.

Pre-reading

As part of your pre-reading material, the following data has been provided. This should be considered in the context of changing processes and models-of-care, and in the context of changing peoples and populations.

Figure 1 and Figure 2 shows emergency department presentations (per 1,000 population) in Aotearoa New Zealand and Australia, respectively. Data is presented by age (14 years of age and under; 15-64 years of age; 65 years of age and older) from 2014 to 2022. The projected change from 2023 to 2032 is also provided.
