

NAIDOC Week 3rd – 10th July

NAIDOC Week is a celebration of the history, culture and achievements of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. NAIDOC stands for 'National Aborigines and Islanders Day Observance Committee' which was the name of the committee that was originally responsible for organising the national NAIDOC Week activities.

Below is a list of resources for your emergency department to use during this celebratory week:

Ideas for celebrating NAIDOC week

NAIDOC history

Aboriginal Health Services

This week is a great opportunity for emergency department staff to have a look at the Indigenous Health and Cultural Competency module series

Te Wiki o te Reo Māori/ Māori Language Week 4th – 10th July

In this week awareness is raised around the language of New Zealand. Simple phrases are promoted and encouragement is given to use the language every day.

Below is a list of resources to which your emergency department can refer to during this celebration and beyond:

Resources for learning Te Reo Māori

Te Reo Māori App

100 Te Reo words every New Zealander should know

The History of Te Wiki o te Reo/Māori Language Week

Fellows are reminded that they can now self-identify as Aboriginal, Torres Strait Islander or Māori on the ACEM database.