Dear Committee,

Updated report for Mongolian IEC manual

Since the provision of funds, 285 copies of the interpreted IEC (Initial Emergency Care) manual have been distributed. The Copies have predominantly been utilized in the annual IEC course which is run by our Australian/New Zealand Emergency team, led by Dr Simon Smith. So far 8 provinces have received the 3 day IEC course using the manual.

Dr Simon Smith reports that the introduction of the manual has allowed the attendees “to reference and consolidate their knowledge” and have been a “great success”.

The Manuals have also been distributed to the MNUMS (Mongolian National University of Medical Sciences) Emergency Medicine Department, which has in recent years started teaching Emergency medicine to the undergraduates. They have also distributed copies to the Ambulance training room.

Currently, only 15 copies remain, and our local contacts will need to consider future funding opportunities for printing of the manual.

Please find attached the breakdown of the distribution form our local contact, Ganbold Lundeg. He has also provided photos of the manual been used within the University.

Kind regards

Dr Loren Sher
